American Medical Response Wins Stevie® Award in 7th Annual American Business AwardsSM

Greenwood Village, Colo. – June 23, 2009 – American Medical Response (AMR) won a Stevie Award for “Best Corporate Social Responsibility Program of the Year - More Than 2,500 Employees” in The 2009 American Business Awards, presented June 22 at a special ceremony in New York City.

In winning its second consecutive Stevie, American Medical Response was selected from eight finalists and more than 100 entries in its category. Stevie Awards were presented in more than 40 categories, including Best Overall Company of the Year, Executive of the Year, and Corporate Social Responsibility Program of the Year. More than 2,600 entries from companies of all sizes and in virtually every industry were submitted for consideration.

Accepting the Stevie on behalf of AMR, Phil Crimaldi, AMR General Manager said, “In our industry we often care for people at difficult times in their lives. It is very rewarding for us to be able to provide Home for the Holidays to our patients and see smiles on their faces.”

Home for the Holidays is a program offered by many AMR operations across the nation. During the Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday season, residents of skilled nursing facilities are provided free medical transportation home to be with loved ones for a few hours.

Mark Bruning, AMR’s President, said, “AMR is honored to have been selected once again from so many outstanding companies that practice social responsibility. We are proud of our Home for the Holiday program, which reflects both our core values and our commitment to hundreds of communities across the nation in which we serve. Along with providing quality emergency medical services, giving back to our communities is the most important and rewarding thing we can do.”
